It started as just a way to deal with the fact that her mom was dying. The penned song, "Praying For You," by Christian Singer/Songwriter Kristeen Nicole Gillooly, was written just four days before her mom passed away from cancer in late February 2014 but it also marked a turning point in her music. She went home that dreadful day and recorded a raw version of the song and put it on social media where it has been well received by others. Now, six months later, the song is available for pre-order on Amazon, and will be released digitally as her debut single on iTunes and Amazon on October 2nd.

As a fairly new Christian, Kristeen has been exploring her faith through music and encouraging others to do the same across several social platforms like Twitter where she has almost 25,000 followers. Based out of Jacksonville, FL, she got her start when her husband, Nicholas E. Gonzalez, released a YouTube video in May 2013 of her singing a popular Christian song acapella. She now has a total of 13 videos that have been viewed in over 140 countries. Earlier this year, she started an independent record label (KNG Music) and publishing company (Praise First Publishing) to self-release the single, and "We Make A Difference" WMAD Internet Radio has already picked up the song. Be on the lookout for her EP album to be released next summer. For more information, visit <http://www.kngmusicnow.com>.
